A WORD TO THE CLAN

Inasmuch as we have been holding reunions since 1932, it would seem that a genealogical record of this branch of the Payne family would be of some interest.

In collecting data it has been necessary to make numerous inquiries. I have always found everyone courteous and willing to do their bit.

Much time and patience has been expended in the endeavor to make a correct record and if an error is found your tolerance is requested. In some instances it was impossible to obtain complete dates, therefore blank pages have been inserted for your convenience.

By loaning old papers, letters and legal documents, Mrs. Fannie Payne Lovejoy, Copenhagen, N. Y., and Mrs. Martha Payne VanPelt, Antwerp, N. Y., have been especially instrumental in helping us establish our lineage. We are also indebted to Mary Lovering Holman, Genealogist and Historical Compiler, Watertown, Mass., for her articles on the Paynes of England and Normandy.

We did not know the name of that ancestor, who with intrepid pioneer spirit, was willing to brave hardships that he might come to these colonial shores to establish a home. The same spirit existed in our Joseph, who, with his wife Eunice and their family, came by ox-cart from Berkshire County, Massachusetts, to the rugged country in Lewis Co., N. Y., and settled in West Turin.

After searching through genealogical records in several libraries (the fine Genealogical Department in the Library at Syracuse, N. Y., has been of invaluable assistance), visiting town clerk offices and cemeteries in and around Turin and in the Cape Cod country, the indications were that we belonged to the Eastham Branch. This problem was finally turned over to Sidney Merriam, Genealogist, of Marblehead, Mass., to solve. It is now a proven fact that we belong to the Eastham Branch, that we are Mayflower descendants and therefore eligible to join the Society of the Mayflower.

It is with pleasure that I dedicate this Genealogical Record to the descendants of Joseph Payne the Sixth, of West Turin, New York, whose paternal ancestor was Thomas Payne of Eastham, Massachusetts.

THE PAYNES OF ENGLAND AND NORMANDY

by Mary Lovering Holman

The name of Payne or Paine is derived from "Paganus," which was from the Latin and doubtless came into England by way of Normandy. The history of this surname is really remarkable. The original Greek word Nayus meant a fountain and the neighborhood about a fountain gradually came to have the name applied to it. From this use it was only a step to apply the word to the inhabitants of the neighborhood and call them "Pagans." Thus the word meaning a fountain gradually applied to rural things in general and we see it in one modern form as "peasant."

At a time when so large a proportion of men were soldiers, and the people who were not were largely countrymen, the name "Pagan" was applied rather contemptously to all those who did not serve their King in a military fashion. After the Christian era began, the followers of Christ were always considered the "soldiers" of Christ and to those not of his religious army the word pagan was applied as it had been used to signify those not in the civil army. From this application there was read into the word, the meaning of "non-Christian" which the word "pagan" bears today. In this sense it was applied widely. The early Church called the Mohammedans "Pagans" and so did the Romans call those Norsemen that swept over Rome and her provinces. There is some question whether as a personal appellation it was first applied to one who rejected Christ or to one who was a countryman.

The Norman Paynes are generally believed to be descended from one or several men who at the time that Rollo, of Normandy, became a Christian, refused to be baptized, and were hence distinguished from the rest of the followers of Rollo, as "le Pagan," or "le Paten." Wherever the name occurs it was undoubtedly first applied as a soubriquet like Le Sauvage and Wildman.

The names of Paganel and Paynell are considered by Ellis and others to be diminutives of Pagan; and one famous man having this form of the name, Ralph Pagenel, was a headman of William the Conqueror. Recent research has proven the identity of the various forms of the name as well as its appearance in many countries. France has its Payen, Paen and Payn. Italy has its Pagana and Portugal its Payana. After the Norman conquest there were various settlements of men bearing the name in England besides those present there before 1066. During the Norman Dynasty, Paganus or Payne was one of the most usual names in England and on this account is now very widely found in all the counties. A family of Paynes settled in Norfolk in the fifteenth century, who claim descent from the Ancient House of Paynell of Hambie in the arrondissement of Coutances. The change from Paynel to Payne may well have been made to evade the vexatious English laws against aliens. Another branch of the Paynells of Hambie settled in Yorkshire and in this family it appears that the same individual was frequently called both Paynell and Payne.

In studying the arms of any English family it is frequently found that there is a parent coat and that many of the other coats ascribed to the same name belong to offshoots of the same family with just enough difference to distinguish them. This is not true of the Paynes. Of the thirty-four Coats of Arms ascribed to the name in Burke's Armory almost all are entirely unlike. This points to the probability that the families are not from one parent stock but that each has arisen into prominence separately, and tends to contradict the assertion that all the Paynes are descendants from the Norman followers of Rollo. It seems much more probable that the several families of the name are descended from unrelated progenitors each of whom was called "Pagan" either because he was a countryman or because he was not a Christian.

There are a few Coats of Arms, however, that tie families of the name together. In Bedford and Middlesex we find families bearing Arms "Gules," a fess between two lions passing, or in Dorset and Denbigh we find again the same Arms "Per bend or and azure, six roundels counterchanged, two and two." There is also found in Dorset another coat of arms which is borne by a Leicester Payne family, namely "Paly of six or and azure, a chief Ermine," and closely allied to this is a Hereford coat "Paly of eight or and azure, a chief Ermine."

The arms of Payne of Market Bosworth, Leicester, and Payne of Suffolk are "Argent, on a fess engrailed gules between three martlets sable, as many mascles or, all within a bordure engrailed of the second bezantee." A variation of this coat is found in Norfolk.

In the list of people holding land in the time of Edward the Confessor and after the Conquest but previous to the Domesday Survey are found Paganes in Norfolk and Pagans in Gloucester. William was assisted in his Conquest by several of the name. One of his chiefs. Ralph Paganel, previously mentioned, was Sheriff of Yorkshire. He was probably a member of the Norman family which held land at Montiers Hubert in Lieuvin. In 1086 Ralph Paganel held ten lordships in Devon, five in Somerset, fifteeen in Lincoln, fifteen in Yorkshire and others in Gloucester and Northampton. In 1088 as Sheriff of Yorkshire he seized the lands of the Bishop of Durham at the command of William II, whose cause he defended at the meeting at Salisbury in November, 1088. He left four sons, William, Jordan, Elias and Alan, and from them has descended a numerous family.

In the Domesday book among those who held land directly of the King was Pagan of Hampshire; and among landholders of lesser station were men named Paganus in Sussex, Berks, Herts, Bucks, Worcester, Cambridge, Essex and Suffolk; men called Pagan in Wilts, Dorset, Oxford, Northampton, Leicester and Stafford. In Nottingham land was held by Pagan and Sasfrid, men of William Peverel.

Dr. T. O. Paine searched the records of the family in the Domesday book and quoted them in his article on the Paines in the "Paine Family Records." He states that all those records referred to one man; that he had a son Edmund and a daughter called "daughter of Paine" who also held land. He traces this Paine in fifteen counties which adjoin and gives the following sketch showing the position of this man's holdings in England.

From the time of the Domesday book to the time of the visitations of the Heralds there is not much in print of the records that time has left. These visitations were records made by the Heralds of the King during the 16th and early 17th centuries to show the families entitled to the use of Coat Armor. The Heralds were first organized in 1484 and from 1530 to 1686 these visitations were made every twenty to thirty years. Many of them are now in print. In order to prove his right to arms, a man had to show that they had been borne by his family for at least three generations, and in support of his claim, he filed with the Heralds a pedigree of his family at least three generations in length and oftentimes longer. Doubtless many families failed ever to be recorded and as time went on and the office of the Heralds became less important the visitations ceased.

During the time between the date of the Domesday book and the visitations, however, there was at least one Payne whose name and deeds have come down to us. In the year 1119, the first crusade being ended, two comrades of Godfrey de Bouillon, Hugues de Payen and Geffroi de Saint-Adhema, bound themselves with seven French Knights to guard Pilgrims to the Holy Sepulchre from the attack of Saracens. They took before the Patriarch of Jerusalem vows of chastity, poverty and obedience. Baldwin II gave them quarters in his palace, built on the site of the Temple of Solomon, from which they took their name of Knights of the Temple or Templars. The order consisted first of Knights alone and the discipline was severe. Hugues de Payen was the first Grandmaster. He died in 1136. History tells us little of him. He was probably the younger son of the Norman House of Payen, and he was evidently a Knight. Whether he was a man of property or not does not appear, as in accordance with the vow of poverty, he would relinquish all he had either to the order or to the Church.

Examination of the Records of Visitations that have been printed reveal the following Payne families:

In the Visitation of Suffolk is found a family beginning with Sir Thomas Payne of Market Bosworth, Leicester, who married Margaret, daughter of Sir Thomas Pultney, Knight. His son Edward, living in 1540, married Elizabeth, daughter of Robert Walton. They had among other sons, William Payne, who had a seat in Hengrave County, Suffolk, and was in the service of the Duke of Buckingham. He married Margery Ash, daughter of Thomas Ash, of Thurlow, in Suffolk. The Arms of Payne of Hengrave were "Argent on a fess engrailed Gules between three martlets Sable, as many mascles or, within a bordure engrailed of the second, charged with fourteen bezants. Crest: a Wolf's head erased Bezantee." This differs in two slight particulars from the Arms credited by Burke to this family. The Paynes of Nowton and of Worlington are both offshoots from Payne of Hengrave.

The Visitation of Leicester 1619, gives a William Payne of Matborne as early as 1500.

The Visitation of Bedfordshire has a family beginning with William Payne of Bedley, in County Worcester, whose son Daniel of Bedford, had William, Margaret and Francis. Margaret married William Child of Wrington in Somerset, and their son Richard was living in 1634. Her arms as quartered with her husband's were "Sa. on a chevron between three bezants or as many fleurs de lys of the field."

A Visitation of Gloucester gives a Payne pedigree beginning with William Payne of Rodborough, who married Margaret, daughter of Thomas Spilman. They had a son William Payne of Rodborough who used his seal on a deed in the year of 40 Edward IV, on which the arms were "Argent, a Chevron azure, between three mullets pierced Gules."

A later Visitation of Gloucester in 1682-3 gives a Payne of Gloucester with arms "3 roundles and on a chief 3 roundles" which is stated to have been "taken from a seal and nothing further to be found." The pedigree begins with Robert Payne of Coldthorp, County Gloucester, who died before 1620. He had —— sons, William, Robert, Richard and Henry. His son Robert by wife Elizabeth had Edward, John, Elizabeth, Joan, Mary and Hannah and their descendants are traced down still farther.

A volume of Visitations of Norfolk, 1563-89-1613, gives the decendants of John Payne of Louth, County Lincoln, whose son was John Payne of Ittringham, County Norfolk. Thomas, the son of this latter John Payne, married Agnes, daughter of John Jermy of Metfield, Suffolk, and had a son Thomas, who by wife Elizabeth had Christopher, Edmund, James, Thomas, Richard, Edward, Frances, James, Mary and Elizabeth. The arms of this family are quartered. "1 & 4-Ar. a Chevron vaire' between three lions rampant Az. 2 & 3—Ar. a lion rampant guardant gules."

In another volume of Norfolk Visitations, appear some interesting facts as:

"1553 Edward Lumner Esq. and Thomas Paine Gent. were appointed trustees for the Lady Elizabeth (afterwards Queen) by license from Queen Mary."

"Sybilla d. and h. of WILLm Hethersell . . . m 2nd John Pain Gent." They had a son Robert Payne living 24 Nov. 1479. This is the date of Sybill Payne's will in which she speaks of son Robert."

Anne daughter of William Reymes of Overstrand, Norfolk, Esq., by Mary daughter of Thomas Payne of Ittringham, married Thomas Hobart of Thwayte, Esq., whose will was proved in 1626.

The Visitation of Kent in 1619 gives a pedigree from John Payne of Shotenton in Chilham whose son and heir was John and whose grandson John was one month old at the time of the Visitation. The arms given in this pedigree are quartered, the Payne Arms being: "Per Saltire Sa. and Ar. a lion rampant counterchanged."

Another Visitation of Kent in 1663 gives the family of Roger Payne of Clepstow in Monmouth, whose son John Payne, was of Wittam Priory in Somerset, and whose grandson Roger Payne, settled in Kent and had a son Christian, who was an infant at that date.

PICTURE ARMS OF PAYNE OF CHILHAM, KENT

The Visitation of Sussex, completed in 1634-5, gives a family beginning with John Payne of Patinswike, who had a son William Payne who died without issue, and a son Thomas Payne of Petworth, who married Elizabeth, a daughter of Anthony Walker Clarke of the Warbrobe in London. The children of the latter were: First: John Payne of Garton, York, who married Eleanor, daughter of Edward Savage of Bradley, and had William and Catherine.

Second: Thomas Payne of Petworth, who married Margaret, daughter of Robert Wheatley in York and had John, Thomas, Walter and Margaret. Among London marriage licenses is the license of Thomas Payn, of Lincoln's Inn and Elizabeth Walker of St. Andrew in the Wardrobe, 28 May, 1577.

A Visitation of Berkshire gives the pedigree of Payne of Wallingford beginning with John Payne of Hawton in Staffordshire whose son Nicholas Payne was of Wallingford. Nicholas Payne married Anna Reed of Buckingham and had issue. His son and heir John Payne of Wallingford, married Anne Winchcombe and had a son Thomas Payne living in 1623 with son Richard aged 16 and son Philip aged 2. Nicholas had another son Griffith, whose son Richard was aged 11 in 1623. The arms of this family confirmed in 1586 were "Or, on a bend engrailed between two cotises Sa., three roses of the first. Crest: A demi ostrich wings endorsed arg., in the beak a key or."

PICTURE ARMS OF PAYNE OF WALLINGFORD

The Visitation of Surrey in 1662-8 gives the pedigree of Payne of Milford beginning with John Payne Gent, whose grandson John Payne Gent, was living at the time of the visitation. Arms: "Gu. two crescents in Chief or."

This Visitation says also in a Bromfield pedigree that Sir Edward Bromfield of Suffolk Place, Surrey, Knight, Lord Mayor of London in 1637, married Margaret Payne, daughter and co-heiress of John Payne of Southwork in Surrey. Her arms appear quartered on a shield of twelve quarterings. They are, "Per bend or and Azure, 6 roundles counterchanged."

This Visitation also mentions the marriage of Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Robert Payne of Huntington, to Dr. John Rogers of Bermondsey, Surrey, and their sons, John Rogers and "Prisonborne" Rogers, both born before 1662.

The Visitation of Herfordshire 1569, gives no Payne pedigree, but mentions the following marriages among others: John Bromwyche and Anne Payne; Richard Scudamore (son of John who died 25 Sept. 1571) and Joan daughter of Edmunde Payne of Founehope.

Robert Chabnor of Norfolk married Anne, daughter and co-heiress of Thomas Payne. They had Payne Chabnor before 1569. These items prove that there was an early family of Paynes in the County of Norfolk.

The Visitation of Huntingdonshire in 1613 also has its Payne pedigree, beginning with Robert Payne of St. Neots. His wife was Agnes daughter of William Scott. The pedigree traces the descendants of his sons Edward Payne with wife Dorothy and Robert Payne with wife Mary. Edward had seven children and amongst them a son Thomas living in 1613.

Visitations of Somerset, prepared in 1531, 1573 and 1591, contain the pedigree of Payne of Hulton, near Weston-super-Mare, with Arms: "Gu. three crosses botonne' arg. on a chief Az. two escallps or." It begins with John Payne and his wife, Lady Jane Kelloway, and is brought down to his grandson, Thomas Payne, with wife Margaret, living 1573. There is also given the marriage of Mary, daughter of John Payne of Hulton to John Dodington of Dodington; of Catherine daughter of Robert Payne of Wiltshire to Richard Claveshey; of Joan de Ramsay daughter of Sir Thomas Ramsay (8 Hen. II) to Thomas Payne, and of William, son of Sir John Wadham of Catherston in Dorset and Merrifield-in-Ilton, Somerset, to Joan, daughter and heiress of William Payne of Catherston.

This research into such of the Visitations as are in print shows plainly that in many counties the families of Payne were among the gentry in the sixteenth century. Of course, there were many gentle families not important enough to be enrolled by the Heralds and doubtless some that failed to be included, although they were as important as those whose pedigrees have survived the hand of time.

An examination of such will indices as are printed reveals a multitudinous collection of Paynes. In Northampton and Rurland between 1537 and 1650 there were thirty-five wills recorded and among them a Thomas Payne in 1622, two Thomas Paynes between 1549-57 both of Rothersthorpe, another Thomas Payne of Rothersthorpe between 1578-89, a Thomas in 1602-3 and another of Wykeham in 1560-66. There was evidently a large family of Paynes in Rothersthorpe very early who were not of the gentry.

In Lichfield wills there are fourteen of Paynes, among them a Thomas in 1615, and another in 1619.

In Berkshire between 1508-1652, there are forty-six Payne wills, four of them being Thomas Paynes.

In Gloucester between 1541-1650, there are fifty-one Payne wills.

In Sussex from 1541-1652, there are one hundred and fifty Payne wills recorded and nineteen of the testators are named Thomas Payne.

In Leicester, from 1495-1649, there are fifty-eight Paine wills, seven being Thomas Paynes. There are similar records in other counties.

In the prerogative Court of Canterbury, where wills from all over England are recorded, there are one hundred and three Payne wills.

There are also many Paynes in London as shown by such church registers as are available. In St. Dionis Backchurch a Thomas Paine had his children baptized between 1604 and 1620, the last child being Thomas, baptized March 25, 1620.

The size of the Payne family shows how almost impossible it is to find the ancestry of any early emigrant of that name to this country. However, during the past year the home of Moses Paine of Braintree has been located in Kent and his direct ancestry traced back to 1463. Another early emgirant Thomas Paine of Salem and Dedham is believed to have come from Wrentham, Suffolk, England, from a family record which has come down through the centuries; but so far as I know it has never been verified in England. The descendants of Thomas Paine of Eastham, while they regret that nothing has yet been found pertaining to his birthplace or ancestry, can still assure themselves that he was doubtless of good blood in England. His education and his career in this country all go to show that he must have had advantages superior to most of the men with whom he was associated in the founding of Eastham.

The fact that the name of the emigrant ancestor of the Paynes of Hamilton spelled his name Paine has no significance. In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries men spelled their surnames as suited their individual tastes. Brothers often spelled their surname differently.

THE PAYNE FAMILY

of Eastham, Sandisfield, Mass., and New York (Pain, Paine, Payne)

by Sidney Merriam

1. THOMAS[1] PAINE, of Eastham. Practically nothing is known of him beyond the fact that he existed, and was the father of Thomas[2] Paine.

Children (probably others):

I. Thomas[2], b. England. (See below).

2. THOMAS[2] PAINE (Thomas[1]) was born in England, probably about 1612. He died at Eastham, in the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, August 16, 1706. He married Mary Snow whose mother was Constance, daughter of Stephen Hopkins, a passenger in the Mayflower in 1620. "Thomas Paine of Eastham . . . Aged and Weak" made his will May 12, 1705. On "October ye 2nd 1706 . . . Mr. Samuel Paine and Capt. Thomas Paine Executors" made oath to the inventory.

Children:

I. Mary[3], m. at Eastham, Jan. 11, 1670, James Rogers.

II. Samuel, b. Eastham; d. there Oct. 13, 1712; m. Eastham, Patience Freeman.

III. Thomas, b. Eastham, 1657; d. Truro, June 23, 1721; m. (1) Hannah Shaw; m. (2) Mrs. Elizabeth Eairs of Boston.

IV. Elisha, b. Eastham, March 10, 1658. Descendants in Hamilton, N. Y.

V. John, b. March 14, 1660-61; m. Bennet Freeman.

VI. Nicholas, b. Eastham; d. there 1733; m. Hannah Higgins.

VII. James, b. Eastham, July 6, 1665; d. Barnstable; m. Bethiah Thatcher of Yarmouth.

3. VIII. Joseph, m. at Eastham, 27 May, 1691, Patience Sparrow. (See below.)

IX. Dorcas, b. Eastham; d. at Hull, Oct. 30, 1707; m. Benjamin Vickery of Hull.

A small figure following the given name denotes the generation. Characters b., m., and d. denote Born, Married and Died.

3. JOSEPH[3] PAINE (Thomas[2] Thomas[1]) married at Eastham, May 27, 1691, Patience, daughter of Jonathan Sparrow, Esq. They had eleven children. Four were recorded at Eastham—the first four—and the remainder at Harwich, the adjoining town. (Orleans, which now lies between Eastham and Harwich, was set off from Eastham in 1797.) Joseph Paine died October 1, 1712, and on November 23, 1715, his widow Patience (Sparrow) Paine married John Jenkins of Barnstable, by whom she had one child, Patience Jenkins, who was baptized at Barnstable, October 6, 1717. Patience (Sparrow) (Paine) Jenkins survived her second husband, also, and died at Barnstable, October 25, 1745, aged "above 70," according to church records. Inventory of the estate of "Ensigne Joseph Paine of Warwich" was taken November 16, 1712, and his widow, Patience, was appointed administratrix. (He died intestate) 27 January, 1712-13. On 14 April, 1718, the estate was divided to the widow and ten of the eleven children. The daughter Mary (born in 1708) was not mentioned, probably dying before date of division. Jonathan Sparrow's wife (mother to Patience), was a daughter of Gov. Thomas Prence. Joseph[3] Paine settled in that part of Harwich which is now Brewster, before 1700. He was one of eight who formed the first church there, October 17, 1700. He was a selectman there in 1701-1711, and succeeded Thomas Freeman as Town Clerk in 1706 and held that office until his death. Joshua Paine, in his journal, says of Joseph Paine: "He was very stout and flung Coll. Thacher, the Champion of the Bay State, at Commencement." Patience Sparrow was also descended from Elder William[1] Brewster of the Mayflower.

Children:

I. Ebenezer[4], b. April 28, 1692.

II. Hannah, b. July 15, 1694; m. Philip Russell, of Barnstable, Jan. 20, 1715-16, and (2) Samuel Bacon, June 7, 1724; d. May 8, 1753.

4. III. Joseph, b. March 29, 1697. (See below.)

IV. Richard, b. March 25, 1699.

V. Dorcas, b. May 27, 1701; m. Joseph Jenkins, Jr., of Barnstable, in 1722-23. They went to Wallingford, Conn. in 1748.

VI. Phebe, b. July 30, 1703; m. Solomon Pepper, Oct. 25, 1724; d. at Eastham, 1774.

VII. Reliance, b. Jan. 27, 1706; m. Eleazer Cobb, Oct. 18, 1724; m. (2) John Coleman, Aug. 5, 1736; d. June 11, 1742.

VIII. Thomas, b. Dec. 1, 1708. } twins.
IX. Mary, b. Dec. 1, 1708. }

X. Jonathan, b. Dec. 10, 1710.

XI. Experience, b. May 27, 1713; m. Joseph Studley, of Yarmouth, March 9, 1733-34.

4. JOSEPH[4] PAINE (Joseph[3] Thomas[2] Thomas[1]) was born at Eastham, March 29, 1697. He married at Harwich (Brewster), March 24, 1719-20, Hannah Huckins. He died June 26, 1772.

Children:

I. James[5], b. Jan. 29, 1720-21.

II. Sarah, b. Sept. 12, 1723.

III. Samuel, b. June 26, 1726; m. (?) Sarah Mayo.

IV. Jonathan, b. Aug. 15, 1729.

5. V. Joseph, b. Aug. 9, 1731; m. Sarah Smith. (See below.)

VI. Hannah, b. July 5, 1735.

VII. Jonathan, b. March 26, 1739.

VIII. Lydia, b. April 16, 1744.

5. JOSEPH[5] PAINE (Joseph[4] Joseph[3] Thomas[2] Thomas[1]) was born at Harwich, Mass., August 9, 1731. He married at Harwich, February 18, 1762, Sarah Smith. At some time between March 12, 1779, when his last child is recorded at Harwich, and December 3, 1781, when he and his wife, Sarah, bought land at Sandisfield from "Lydia Smith, late wife and now widow of Samuel Smith," he moved with his wife and children. The land bought at Sandisfield was "two Second Division Lots,

Nos. 47, 48, on or near a hill called Mount Prospect.'' His death is recorded at Sandisfield: ''Joseph Paine, May 5, 1814, aged 82.'' This corresponds with the date of his birth at Harwich, making him 82 years, 8 months and 26 days old at death. The death of his wife, Sarah, is also recorded at Sandisfield, as, ''Sarah, wife of Joseph, May 1, 1814, aged 73.'' Sandisfield is in Berkshire County, Mass., and was not settled until 1750, and had few inhabitants until much later.

Children, recorded at Harwich:

	I. Mary[6],	b. April 8, 1763.
	II. Ebenezer,	b. Dec. 30, 1765.
	III. Huldah,	b. Aug. 21, 1769.
6.	IV. Joseph,	b. Aug. 1, 1771; m. Eunice Wright. (See 6 below.)
	V. Lusea,	b. July 10, 1773.
7.	VI. ''Rubin'' (Reuben)	b. October 22, 1776; m. (1) Rachel Crowfoot; m. (2) Lucy Uttly. (See below.) (No. 7.)
	VII. Nathan,	b. March 12, 1779.

6. JOSEPH[6] PAINE (Joseph[5] Joseph[4] Joseph[3] Thomas[2] Thomas[1]) was born at Harwich, Mass., August 1, 1771. He married Eunice Wright, probably at Sandisfield. He moved from Berkshire County, Mass., to Turin, Lewis County, N. Y., about 1824, where he died November 11, 1851, aged 80. His wife (widow) Eunice died April 21, 1852, aged 73. Joseph Paine was of New Marlborough, Berkshire County, March 19, 1817, when he mortgaged land in Sandisfield from Dan Smith, and the same in 1785, May 3, 1785. The last was probably recorded by him June 8, 1801, for he was under age in 1785. The conveyance was probably by Joseph, Sr. The conveyance was to Sparrow Snow and wife Lucretia, which is significant, since it has been shown in the foregoing pages that these Paines were closely related to both the Snows and the Sparrow family. There is also a conveyance of land at Sandisfield to Nathaniel Paine ''of Eastham'' from Hezekiah May of Wethersfield (Conn.?) May 20, 1762. Joshua Smith was a witness. (The mortgage mentioned above was by Dan Smith to Joseph Paine of New Marlborough; i. e. Paine was the mortgagee.)

Children, recorded at Sandisfield:

I. Sally[7], b. Dec. 25, 1799; d. July 21, 1820, at Sandisfield.
II. Martha, b. . . . 21, 1801.
III. Luther Wright, b. March 26, 1804.
IV. Jason, b. Feb. 8, 1806; m. Melissa Sabin. Both buried, Turin.
V. Mary, b. March 4, 1808. ("Polly"?) (Polly was a common nickname for Mary.)
VI. Eliza, b. June 26, 1810.
VII. Lucinda, b. Jan. 11, 1813; (perhaps called Lucy?); d. Aug. 13, 1820.
VIII. Clarinda, b. May 30, 1815.

Sups With Royalty—Guest of Prince

F. J. Payne of San Fernando has just returned from a three months' tour of the picturesque Canadian Rockies country. He spent some time with his brother, Wilbur E. Payne, in Alberta. While in Alberta Mr. Payne in company with some cattlemen in the section where he was visiting was entertained at luncheon by the Prince of Wales on his stock farm at High River.
Mr. Payne, like others who have met the future King of England, found him a young man of charming personality, apparently unconscious of the exalted station he is hereafter to occupy.
